An Extradition Case-A Discharge-The Pike Will Case—Business of the General Sessions.

The Law of Extradition-The Case of M. Ahlander-He is Discharged, and Then

Before Commissioner Osborn.

The further hearing of the case of M. Ahlander, aline Magnus Andersen, was resumed yesterday. The defendant is charged with having, while acting in the capacity of a public officer—to wit, as champerlain in the prison of Landskrona, Sweden-emexzled about six thousand rix dollars, the prop erty of the Swedish government. A demand has bezied about six thousand rix dollars, the property of the Swedish government. A demand has been made by the Swedish authorities upon the United States for the surrender of the accused.

The Commissioner, after some discussion between counsel on both sides, said he would like to adjourn the matter until next day in order to give a written opinion upon the case, as it was one of importance, and especially as he had been informed by counsel for the prosecution that he was prepared to lodge a new complaint against the prisoner. He (the Commissioner) decided that, on the first charge, he could not hold Ahlander, so if he discharged him now he presumed he would be immediately rearrested on this new complaint.

Ar. Forster, on behalf of the prosecution, sought to introduce into the present case what he described as pipperly authenticated documents which he had just received from the government of Sweden; but he had not yet, he said, been able to get them translated. These documents exactly set forth the offence alleged agains. Ahlander.

Mr. Reymert, counsel for the accuse. strongly resisted the motion, insisting that it would be tyranny any longer to keep Ahlander in pricand merely to gratily the government of Sweden, which evidentity did not understand the nature of the treaty they had entered into with the United States.

The Commissioner denied the motion, and there-a maintained upon a review of the commis-abeas corpus.

Thereupon Mr. Forster applied to the Commis-doner for the rearrest of the accused on a new complaint. This complaint was grounded, he said, upon additional evidence in relation to the prence above specified. ence above specified.

A warrant was then made out for the rearrest Ahlander, who was taken in custody of a Maral, and removed to prison to await another ex-Charge of Passing Counterfelt Money.

The United States vs. Marshine Strack.—The dewho had been accused of having attempted to pass counterfelt fifty-cent currency stamps, was discharged. It appeared to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that the stamps had innocently come into her possession.

SURROGATE'S COURT. The Pike Will Case Still On. Before Surrogate R. C. Hutchings. The examination in the Pike will case was re-

The examination in the rice will case was to ammed yesterday before Surrogate Hutchings, and attracted quite a large audience.

Jonathan Laurence was the first witness. He testided that he was acquainted with Mr. Pike, the testator, for several years; had business relations with him in the year 1871; had several conversations with him about real estate; he seemed to be ons with him about real estate; he seemed to be eble in body and mind; on one occasion the testator told him that his son had treated him unkindly; alled upon him at his house several times; his apearance seemed greatly changed on those occasions; there was a great difference in his manner estator was less lively than usual; saw Mr. Pike at the xchange Salesroom; was in the habit of going here; his manner was peculiar then.

Cross-examined—Mr. Pike said his family was untend to him; he complained that his son hed.

cross-examined—Mr. Pike said his family was un-kind to him; he complained that his son had brought his wife into his house, and that he had to support her; he spoke about that several times, and also referred to other matters; his conversa-tion was mixed up, and his mind seemed to be wandering. The further hearing in the case was then ad-

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS. An Ingenious Swindler Convicted of Lurceny. Before Recorder Hackett.

The only interesting case on the calendar was an indictment against Henry Smith for grand larceny.
It appeared from the statement of the complaining itness, Mrs. Sarah March, residing at 271 Spring street, that her husband works at Phalon's, on Broadway; that on the afternoon of the 19th of June the prisoner went to her house and stated that her husband had got into a little trouble, baving been arrested for striking a man over the Bt. Nicholas. She remarked that it was strange that her husband should make such a request he that her husband should make such a request he knowing that she had just got up from a sick bed. The prisoner and herself had further conversation, he stating that her husband wanted $12. Not having that amount at command she gave the prisoner her watch and chain, with the understanding that he would pawn it and give the ticket to Mr. March. He left, and that was the last she saw of Mr. Smith until she was called upon to identify him a month afterwards in Essex Market.

Mr. March was also sworn and stated that he never knew the prisoner, never was arrested and find not authorize him to ask money of his wife.

Counsel for the prisoner contended that the accused could not be convicted under the indictment of grand larceny, while the District Attorney maintained that the bill was properly drawn and that the proof established the larceny by trick and device.

the proof established the larceny by the and service.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of grand larceny.

Counsel moved for a new trial, and the Recorder said he would listen to the argument on Friday.

There are several similar charges against Smith where he, as is alleged, deeced unsuspecting females and in some instances frightened them by saying that their husbands had got into great trouble. If he is convicted of these offences the Recorder will punish him with the utmost severity.

Larceny of a Watch.

John F. Gaynor, who, on the 17th of August, stole a silver watch from John McNally, pleaded guilty to petty larceny from the person, and was sent to the State Prison for four years, His Honor remarking that plekpockets were engaged in stealing from citizens every hour in the day. Burglary.

William Jones was tried and convicted of burglary, the proof showing that on the 7th of June he entered the apartments of Adam Baker, at 118 South Fifth avenue, in the daytime, and stole $60 worth of clothes. He was chased by a woman and worth of clothes. He was chased by a woman and a man and arrested by an officer, with the bundle and a skeleton key in his possession. He had the audacity to go upon the stand and tell the "old, old story," that he saw a man "chuck" the bundle down in the street and he picked it up.

The Recorder has no sympathy to expend upon any prisoner whom he believes to be guilty, and accordingly imposed the severest penalty that could be inflicted on Jones, which was five years in the State Prison.

John Barr, charged with stealing $74 from Patrick O'Donnell on the 18th of August, pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny, Patrick Martin tendered a similar plea, the allegation against him being that on the 21st of August he stole a black horse worth $300 from Frederick Kuppleman. These prisoners were each sent to the State Prison for two years and six months.

An Acquittal.

John W. Brown was tried for stealing a piece of gold and a mould used for gold beating from William Vallane's place in Broome street, but the evidence failing to connect the prisoner with the theft the Recorder directed the jury to render a verdet of

Sinc Sister Charges Another Sister with Larceny-A Revolting Picture-Acquittal of the Accused.

The last case disposed of by the jury was, to say the least, possessed of novel features. The complainant, Mrs. Fanny Myres, whose husband keeps plainant, Mrs. Fanny Myres, whose husband keeps a lager beer saloon in West Fourth street, alleged that, on the 5th of August, Louisa McAlpine, her own sister, stoic $250 in money from her: that she saw her leave the house, followed and held her until an officer came up and arrested her with the money in her possession.

Mr. Kintzing admitted that the accused took the money, but claimed that it was hers. Then the prisoner went upon the stand and told a most revoiting and painful story, the substance of which was that her sister before she moved kept a house of ill-fame, and succeeded in persuading her to lead a life of shame, and that her share of the proceeds amounted to over $300, which the prosecuting witness promised to put in the bank for her.

The Recorder truly observed in his charge that the case presented a revoiting picture. A verdict of not guilty was rendered by the jury, after which the Court adjourned.

Gallagher's Suit Against the City.

Before Judge Neilson.
As reported in yesterday's HERALD, Contractor Daniel Gallagher is suing the city to recover $5,370 alleged to be due on his contract for grading and paving Ferris street, from Dikeman to Elizabeth street. He was stopped by a resolution of the Common Council before the work was completed. It is claimed on the part of the defence that the contract was never signed by the Mayor, and that Gallagher has charged too much for the work done. done. The case has been submitted without argument, and Judge Neilson has reserved his decision.

men They Mistake Each Other for Thieves and Engage in Mortal Combat. In the neighbor hood of two o'clock yesterday in the neighbor. With blood and scarcely morning a man covered with blood and scarcely conscious entered the Ninth predict station house, in Gates, near Marcy avenue, Brood with He was recognized by the Sergeant in charge as a rivate watchman, named Charles August, who has been employed for some time past in watching the Brooklyn avenues. August was so weak and conused that it was some time before the Sergeant could ascertain from him how and where he nad got injured. He stated that he had been NEARLY MURDERED BY A BURGLAR. "I was passing along Brooklyn avenue," he said, "between Baltic and Warren streets, just before tweive o'clock last night, when I discovered a man sitting on the stoop of one of the houses I was employed to watch. I supposed him to be a thief, waiting for an opportunity to commit a burglary. I asked him what he was doing there, and told him to move off, and at the same time I started to pull the bell to awaken the inmates. As I did so the knocked me senseless. When I came to I started for the station house."

The Sergeant, finding that August was badly injured, lost no time in summoning Police Surgeon Brady, but the surgeon found it impossible to dress the wounds alone owing to the excited state of the injured man, and had him removed to the City Hos-pital, pital,

It uppears that Mr. Adams, a resident on Brooklyn avence, had furnished a house on the opposite side of the street for his son, who was to take possession of it as soon as he returned from his wedding tour; and, fearful that it might be broken into and robbed while unoccupied, he put Thomas Moran, a man who had been in his employ for some years, to watch it.

robbed while unoccupied, he put Thomas Moran, a man who had been in his employ for some years, to watch it.

WATCHING FOR HOUSEBREAKERS.

This was a new business for Moran, and he did not assume the responsibility with any great pleasure, though he determined to do his duty let what might happen. He seemed to be impressed with the idea that an attempt would be made by burgiars to break into the house, so he stationed himself in the shadow of the doorway and kept a sharp watch upon everybody who passed that way. Mr. Adams had forgotten to mention to Moran that there was a private watchman on the avenue, nor was Moran aware of the fact. Moran was in an excited state, and every man who happened to pass the house was, in Moran's excited imagination,

A SIX-FOOT BURGLAR ARMED WITH PISTOLS, knives and jimmys, and he heaved a sigh of relief when they passed on and were lost to sight in the darkness. It was nearly midnight when Charles August got round to that locality, and catching a glimpse of Moran's figure as he was posted up in the doorway, like a sentinel, it was not surprising that he mistook him for a thief. Knowing that this class of men are always armed, he was a little backward about stepping boldly forward. He had a little whistle, which he blew, in order, no doubt, as he thought, to warn the thief that he was a little backward about stepping boldly forward. He had a little whistle, which he blew, in order, no doubt, as he thought, to warn the thief that he was a bout, and that he had an opportunity to get away. Moran, hearing the whistle, concluded at once that the fellow was whistling for a confederate on the other side of the house, and, grasping the club more firmly, he said to humself, "If that thafe comes about here I'll give him the weight of this bit of a stick." August, finding that his supposed thief was not going to move, mustered up courage enough to approach the stoop and order him off. In a moment the

TWO WATCHMEN WERE ENGAGED IN DEADLY COM beating each other over the head in a terrible manner. Moran soon had August's club wrenched from his hand, and was pounding him over the head with it. After the assault it appears it took August two hours to reach the Ninth precinct station house, which was only a few blocks distant. Two policemen were sent out to look up the supposed ruffianly assaulant, and when they reached Mr. Adams' house the evidences of the severe conflict were plainly perceptible. The sidewalk and stoop were covered with blood, and Moran sat in the doorway with a bloody handkerchief to his nose trying to stanch the blood, which was still dripping from that organ. Before the police could make any inquiries. Moran began to abuse them for not being about.

"Yez are niver where yer out to be when yer out be there. I'm just after having the face o' me knocked off by a murderin' thafe, sure. Bedad, I gave him wilt with this bit of a stick, and I don't think he'll be after bothering me any more tonight, so I don't, sure."

"No, Moran," replied the officer, "I don't think he'll bother you again, as he has been taken to the hospital and will probably die."

MORAN—Served him right, sure, the murderin thafe.

"I guess you were both a little too hasty," rebeating each other over the head in a terrible man-thafe.

"I guess you were both a little too hasty," replied the officer. "The man you thought was a thief was the private watchman, Charles August. Now you will have to go to the station house with Moran was taken to the station house and afterwards committed to Jail to await examination. August will probably recover, though the surgeons say that he is very badly injured.

YORKVILLE POLICE COURT.

A MATRIMONIAL DIFFICULTY. A case of abandonment, in which David Mc-Elreavy, a plumber and gasfitter doing business at 513 Third avenue, was the defendant, came up for decision in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday. decision in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday.
Alderman Plunkett ordered McEireavy to pay his wife for the support of herself and child the sum of $5 a week. The accused refused to do this on the ground that his lawful wife, who is at present living at Greenpoint, was now receiving from him an annual amount of $600, and his counsel therefore argued that the law could not compel him to support two wives at the same time.
He admitted to have been regularly married to the complainant, but does not think that he thereby was guilty of bigamy because the first wife virtually gave him up on his promise to pay her the sum of $600 a year. The accused appealed from the decision of the Court and gave ball to appear for trial at the General Sessions, where wife No. 2 intends to prossecute him on a charge of bigamy. After the decision was given the litigant parties met in the officers' room, when the wife struck McEireavy in the face with her parasol. The compliment was returned by the husband, who struck her on the side of the head with his fist, sending her spinning round the room.
A scene of confusion followed; but there were no arrests, and the parties finally left the Court amid the jeers of those who had collected to see the fun, McEireavy is over fifty years of age.

This was on Monday last, and as they did not put in an appearance during the remainder of the day or that night, McGovern reported the case to Officer Doyle, of the First precinct, who yesterday morning succeeded in effecting, the arrest of the parties. He also ascertained that they had sold the boat to an unknown party up the Hudson for $35. They were committed for trial by Judge Hogan at the Tombs Police Court.

"CHECKMATED."

A Curious Case of Swindling Under Palse Pretences—A Story of Check and Cre-

Frank Von Arnim, a fine-looking, intelligent young German, about twenty-three years of age, was arraigned at Essex Market yesterday before Judge Scott, charged with obtaining $1,408 50 from false pretences. The complainant in this case is a lady some sixty-three years of age, who looks like hady some sixty-three years of age, who looks like a hard-working woman. She explained herself with some difficulty, owing to her not being acquainted with the English language, but the following is the substance of the complaint:—

On the 20th of December, 1871, or thereabout, Frank Von Arnim came to her house in Bayard street and engaged board. While in the house he made himself very agreeable to everyhedy with made himself very agreeable to everybody with whom he came in contact. He told Mrs. Bremlich all about his relations in the old country; stated that they were well known in Berlin and were all of them wealthy. For two months he paid his board regularly, and then remained after that till the lat of April, awaiting remittances from home. On the 3d of April young yon Arnim left the domicile of Mrs. Bremlich, owing her about $50. She heard nothing of him after that till the beginning of last August. She then received a letter from him, at the hands of a Mr. Abraham Peder, who represented himself as the superfutendent of the St. Francis Hospital, in Phitadelphia. This letter stated that he (Yon Arnim) had been lying sick in the above-mentioned hospital for a long time, but that he had now become convalescent and would soon call to see her. He also wished to communicate to her a piece of good news, which was that he had inherited from an aunt, who died recently in Berilin, a sum of money amounting to $2,300. On the 3d of August Von Arnim himself made his appearance and was cordully received by Mrs. Bremlich with many kind inquiries after his health and congratulations on his good fortune. Von Arnim told Mrs. Bremlich about the money he expected to receive, and also that a Mr. Holder, an old friend of his, was going to advance it to him for a consideration. The same day Mrs. Bremlich received a visit from some person whose name she did not ascertain, and this person left her a letter from Mr. Holder, containing a check for $2,300, drawn in favor of Frank Von Arnim or bearer, on the Atlantic Sayings Bank, and signed "M. Holder." This check she was asked to keep carcully, as it was left with her on deposit for Yon Arnim's account. It was dated "23d of August" and was not to be drawn before them.
